as to whether a similar proposal was sanctioned for any other Municipality

6) The proposal to abolish octroi on the articles selected by the Municipal council is unobjectionable as individually it yield comparatively a very small amount except perhaps in the case of jaggery which yields Rs 10911 out of a total income of Rs 50000 from octroi

7) As regards increasing the rate of fees on carts going to the market, the enhancement is objectionable as no additional facilities by way of stalls etc are contemplated. The toll committee has proposed that all Municipal councils may be permitted to levy tolls on all traffic except through traffic and the proposal has been accepted by the Govt. At it is open to the Municipal council to levy tolls, it does not appear necessary to increase the rates of market fees

8) If the Munc council decide not to levy tolls, there is no objection to the enhancement of the market fees from 2 annas a cart to 4 annas as the object of the Toll committee that through traffic should not be taxed will have been secured by the present method proposed by the Munc council. At any rate it is desirable that the Govt may be assured of the fact that the Municipal council will not press for the levy of tolls besides increasing the rates of market fees

9) The normal income of the Munc council is about Rs 10,000 and the normal expenditure is Rs 8,000. The surplus admits practically of the abolition of octroi on the articles selected even without resorting to the enhancement of the rates of market fees the Munc council had a balance of Rs 9150 on 1st July 1926
